Vision Padel Racket - Power - Green/Maroon

SS23

The Vision – Power was the initial shape used by our sponsored players. This is the shape we have used as the base for the development of our new Power Frame shapes. It is a traditional teardrop shape with a power bar offering a bit more stability and stiffness than traditional teardrop shapes.

Its balance center point is slightly more towards the head of the bat because of the teardrop geometry. The Touch® foam gives this racket its specific feeling. This is ideal for many different situations and allows you to return the ball effortlessly with great precision.

Vision Pro Padel Racket - Control - Snap

SS23

The Vision Pro Collection is the perfect blend of playful design and great performance. All Vision ranges strive to keep in touch with trends and pop culture, while still offering high-end build properties like carbon and twin-tube frame construction.

The Vision Pro Control is a round-shaped racket ideal for more defensive- and control-oriented players, The central position of the sweet spot creates an intuitive sense of play that will acclimatize you to the racket immediately. Also, the maximized face forgives many lesser struck balls. This is a great racket for a wide-level range of defensive players. In general, we would recommend this shape to forehand players.

Pro Tour LTD Padel Racket - Control

SS23

The Pro Tour Limited bats are the only bats in our collection to feature aluminum-coated 3K woven carbon. The aluminum coating offers extra protection from impact and further enhances the strength to weight ratio that makes carbon the most premium choice for high-end sports equipment. We only produce a set amount of these bats every year, truly making them limited editions.

The Pro Tour LTD Control is a round-shaped racket ideal for more defensive- and control-oriented players, The central position of the sweet spot creates an intuitive sense of play that will acclimatize you to the racket immediately. Also, the maximized face forgives many lesser struck balls. This is a great racket for a wide-level range of defensive players. In general, we would recommend this shape to forehand players.

The Pro Tour Limited bats are the only bats in our collection to feature aluminum-coated 3K woven carbon. The aluminum coating offers extra protection from impact and further enhances the strength to weight ratio that makes carbon the most premium choice for high-end sports equipment. We only produce a set amount of these bats every year, truly making them limited editions.

The Pro Tour LTD Power is a teardrop-shaped racket ideal for more offensive-oriented players, The higher position of the sweet spot ensures that well-struck smashes are rewarded with insane speed transfer. Also, the maximized face forgives many lesser struck balls. This is a great racket for a wide-level range of offensive players. In general, we would recommend this racket to backhand players.

Carbons & Composites

All our materials are produced by global leading manufacturers in their respective fields and carbon is one of the key ingredients in producing world class padel rackets. We have a long-standing relationship with the Japanese company Toray, in our opinion, the best carbon manufacturer in the world.

They have been producing yarns, composites and fibres since 1926 and have developed over the past 100 years into a global corporation that produces in 26 countries. We couldn't hope for a better partner to produce our carbons and fibres.

A bit more information about carbon:

Carbon fibres are made from precursors such as rayon or polyacrylonitrile (PAN), these precursors are chemically treated, heated and stretched. Afterwards they get carbonised to get high-strength fibres.

A 3K fabric has 3000 strands of carbon in each tow, while a heavier weight fabric, like 6k for example has 6000 strands per tow. A standard tow is 125" wide, so that's a lot of fibre packed into a small space. That is what makes carbon fibre such a strong material. Carbon fibre fabric comes in a variety of weaves and spreads that have different strength/weight ratios and offer different properties.

We have 4 options of carbon fabric weaves and tows that we use for our rackets.

3K biaxial twill weave carbon fabric is the golden standard in sports equipment manufacturing and we have created 100s of successful products over the last decade using this fabric. It's strength/weight ratio is excellent compared to the relative cost of the material, and it weights 200 grams per square meter (200GSM)

18K Textreme® biaxial spread-tow carbon fabric is a relatively new type of carbon fibre fabric. It is very similar to a conventional woven cloth, but is manufactured using a special 'spreading' technology to make the individual tows of carbon fibre very flat and wide. The result is a fabric that is smoother and flatter than a conventional woven cloth with less of the 'crimp' that occurs each time warp and weft tows intersect each other. This reduced crimp means that spread tow fabrics can provide marginal stiffness advantages, it also results in a very unique looking bolder carbon fibre weave pattern. This fabric boasts an impressive 160GSM.

18K Gernitex® triaxial spread-tow carbon fabric is the latest revolution in carbon fabric manufacturing. Traditional carbon fiber fabrics and Kevlar fabrics consist in two sets of parallel yarns oriented in two perpendicular directions, for instance 0° and 90°. These fabrics are therefore called bi-axial.

Triaxial fabrics are composed of three sets of parallel yarns corresponding to three directions: 0°, -60° and +60°. Their structure is triangular. Triaxial carbon fiber do not exhibit the inherent deficiencies of biaxial reinforcement fabrics. Their strength is practically the same regardless of the stress direction and type. In addition to its superior properties, tri-axial fabrics also look incredibly futuristic and performant. Triaxial carbon finally has the best strength/weight ration and comes in at 120GSM.

Glass fibre has roughly comparable mechanical properties to other fibers such as polymers and carbon fiber. Although not as rigid as carbon fiber, it is much cheaper and significantly less brittle when used in composites. Glass fibers are therefore used as a reinforcing agent for many sports products. With 300GSM

Osaka EVA Foam

EVA foam is in high demand in the sports- and especially padel-market today because of its exceptional qualities and uses. EVA foam is produced by a copolymerization reaction between Ethylene and Vinyl Acetate, hence EVA. It is highly durable and sturdy even at extremely low temperatures. But more importantly for padel, it is able to withstand repeated stress and compression without obtaining cracks and recuperates at an incredible rate. It also maintains these properties for a long time and is considered a very resilient foam.

On top of all that it offers all these excellent properties in a lightweight package, making it the ideal choice for padel. All the above caused us to choose only EVA foam in our padel rackets in various densities and blends.

Osaka Snap® foam is an excellent lightweight foam we developed with our supplier to specifically increase sweet-spot size and help players achieve higher ball-speeds with less effort. The foam is designed specifically to help you get the ball back across the net with little effort, this is achieved through the excellent recuperation rate of the EVA foam, which in turn creates a trampoline effect in the sweet-spot area. We use this foam in the majority of our range since it is an ideal foam for a wide variety of players.

Osaka Touch® foam is marginally heavier than its Soft counterpart, but offers some very similar properties. It was also designed specifically to increase sweet spot-size, but Touch® foam seeks to offer more control and precision. We achieved this through developing a slightly less-bouncy foam that allows players to place the ball where they want it wherever they are on the pitch. Touch® foam is used in parts of our range where we feel players will be looking for a bit more precision.

Construction Method

As of this season all Osaka rackets are produced using a carbon frame system. This means that the outer edge of the racket is formed carbon frame that increases the strength and durability of all Osaka rackets. There is a difference between the rackets in how this frame is formed. We have a single stage process for the more budget friendly rackets and a 2 stage process for our high range. One of the major benefits of a double stage process is the width of the frames we can achieve, the thinner the frame, the larger the foam area and the sweet-spot.

Single-stage Osaka rackets are produced in a single go, so the frame and face of the racket come out of the mould in a single go. This allows us to produce rackets in higher volumes, while still offering the benefits of a racket with a frame system. The width of these frames varies between 10-12mm.

Double-stage Osaka rackets have 2 distinct stages. In stage 1, the frame is formed using a twintube frame moulding process which creates the stiffest, most durable frames we have been able to produce to date. In the second stage, the foam is added into the frame and the face fabrics are applied. This double stage process also allows us to produce thinner frames with the same properties as their thicker counterparts. The width of these frames varies between 6-9mm.

Racket Surface Treatment

Over the last years we have experimented greatly with surface treatments. These 3D structures on the face of the racket allow players to put more spin on their ball, especially with shots like the bandeja, achieving great backspin is critical for your success on the court. This experimentation resulted in 2 proven methods we apply separately, or sometimes in combination on our different models.

The Quantum Spin® system has been implemented on our rackets since the first generation, but we have fine-tuned this technology over the last 3 years. 3 Dimensional shapes on the face of the racket create drag on each contact with the ball and result in a drastically improved rotational force. In dry conditions this rotational force can increase by up to 7% giving you a distinct advantage, in wet conditions this can even go up to 9%.

Sand Surface coating is a finishing process we have been using for over a decade, in this process resin coated sand particles are sprayed onto the surface of the rackets. These sand particles form tiny holds for the felt fibres on padel balls that further increase the spin applied to the ball with each contact. This surface treatment can generate between 3-5% depending on playing conditions.

Edge Protection

Our Pro Tour and Pro Tour Limited Rackets will be delivered with an especially designed and beautifully shaped TPU bumper, this bumper has a maximum depth of 2,5mm and weighs around 11 grams. The sand surface on the rackets allows for excellent adhesion with the glue, so the bumper will never come off unwanted after you apply it. The balance of your racket will be slightly altered after application, so the bumper can always be removed if you prefer the playstyle of the bat without it. The choice is yours!

Our Vision Pro rackets will be delivered with an applied see-through PU bumper. While still allowing the beautiful graphics to shine, your edge will be protected by an extremely lightweight bumper.

Overgrip NOS

Osaka overgrips are a completely new solution to the problem every player faces. How do I make sure the stick stays in my hands even when it gets really wet! A lot of research lead us to another sport that faces similar problems: tennis.

For decades tennis players have been applying overgrips on top of their regular grips to ensure the racket does not move in your hands without you wanting it. We found one of the best suppliers in the world and got to work to adapt these items to fit padel perfectly.

Every package comes with 2 grips, which should last you anywhere from 4 to 8 weeks, and the necessary sticker to firmly seal it in place. Take care to apply the grip with as much force as you can muster, and don't worry about any crinkles, after a couple hours the grip will settle into place!

Specs:

- Perfect grip, even in wet conditions
- Very thin layer, also suitable for smaller hands
- Available in 2 colours: white and black
- 2 grips per package + 4 end tapes for sealing into place
